THE NEED:

If creative thinking is the #1 skill needed in the workforce, it should be a top focus for education as well. Not only do our teachers need to have intercultural creative skills to teach diverse populations but our students will need these skills for their future success as well. This is the right time for training in Intercultural Creativity™ for our classrooms, our teachers and our educational system at large.

THE VOICE:

Genein Letford is an award-winning educator, best-selling author and global speaker on Intercultural Creativity™. She is a leading voice on innovating across cultural lines and her 7 Gems of Intercultural Creativity framework is the top training for 2021 and beyond. As a sought-after speaker and educational facilitator, she has inspired many educators, leaders and administrators to develop their creative abilities while establishing a culture of inclusion and belonging for their environment.
